SUNO and Delgado to sign articulation and “two-plus-two” agreements

NEW ORLEANS, LA – Southern University at New Orleans (SUNO) and Delgado Community College will unite to rekindle an articulation agreement between the two institutions as well as sign a two-plus-two agreement at a press conference on Wednesday, May 6, 2009, 2 p.m. in the SUNO Park Campus Cafeteria at 6400 Press Drive. Dr. Victor Ukpolo, the chancellor of SUNO and Dr. Ron Wright, the chancellor of Delgado, will jointly sign the agreement.

The two-plus-two agreement calls for Delgado graduates from its associate degree programs in Biology, Mathematics or Criminal Justice to seamlessly transition into their junior years at SUNO's Bachelor of Science programs in these three areas.

Annually, the top two-plus-two student from Delgado will receive financial assistance to attend SUNO. Additionally, students who participate in two-plus-two academic programs will be eligible to reside in SUNO's student housing facility which is slated to open in January 2010.

"We are simply enhancing our on-going association with Delgado," says Ukpolo. This represents yet another opportunity for SUNO to maintain mutually beneficial relationships that will positively impact the higher education arena in our region. We are happy to have Delgado as a partner in this quest."
